The Muse.

FROM THE PATRIOT AND CAUSE.

THE DEATH OF THE REBELLION.

ATMIDNIGHT, on his office lounge, Farney was dressing of the hour. When Democrats, in vigilance bent, Should tremble at his power;—

He sat in his chair, his power Election news, as conqueror.

At noon, his auge of triumph sung;

Then heard bold Sumner's words of praise;

Then through old Abram, made a raise

Of contracts, that in profit pays.

The gold from freemen wrung.

At midnight, in another lounge,

The Democrats their council held;

The groan, the groan, the wise were there,

And with high hopes their bosoms swelled.

They were the sons of those who stood,

So firmly for their country's good.

In days of Jackson—bold;

And now, they felt that without pause,

They'd fight it bravely for our cause.

The Constitution and the laws,

As did their sires of old.

At twelve o'clock, on Farney awoke,

That bright dream was his last—

He awoke—to hear the ringing shout,

Of those who, for the “contraband,”

Would flood into our happy land,

A moment into freedom.

A moment into freedom,

And hold him complice unshamed.

He awoke—to hear his name,

With those who for their country's good

Would sacrifice their wealth and blood—

Coupled with every shame.

He awoke to hear all good men say,

Thank God, this ends the recreant's power.

The dog is dead—he's had his day,

And beneath the lash must ever cower.

He awoke to hear the traitor groan,

With groan, the traitor groan,

And all his hopes were sunk.

Then saw him close his battle-clasp,

And struggle in its death grasp.

Until he fell dead drunk.

Came to the bridal chamber, death!

Came to the mother, when she feels,

For the first time, her first-born's breath.

Came when the blessed seals

That close the pestilence are broken;

And crowded cities wait to strike:

“He strike!—he strike!”

The ebon-piastre is broken;

When the heart beats high and warm,

With languor—long, and daze and wane,

And it is terrible! The traitor,

The groan, the knell, the pall, the bier,

Are drear!—yet with confidence clear,

We calmly bid our time.

But when a man whose perfumed soul

With every well thought is exanined,

The voice sounds like a prophet's word;

And in its hollow tones are heard,

The glee of finds who wait the damned;

In Farney's tomb, the traitor grave,

Condemned to infamy through time,

Best there! there is no greater knave;

Sordid in any clime.

We tell thy doom without a sigh.

For when, notorious now, art Farney's—

One of the few, detested names,

Immortal in their infamy,

“I am neither brave enough nor strong

Enough for a soldier's wife.”

She means that her husband was plain from fact, yet you have brave enough and strong enough,” replied Mr. Harley with animation.

“Not every one could have moved

so calmly amid the dreadful scenes of a camp hospital after a battle. I watched you often, and felt proud of you.”

FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.
THE BATTLE OF SATURDAY.

The Fight the most Desperately Contested of the War.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 14, 1862.—The battle of yesterday was one of the most severely and desperately contested of the whole war. It raged fiercely throughout the entire day, and even after darkness had shrouded the field, it was kept up with a determination on both sides, which seemed as though it was likely to last until one army or the other had become so exhausted as to be unable to maintain the fight any longer. The fighting on our immediate front and right had beyond Fredericksburg, was carried on by Gen. Sumner's grand division, comprising the Second and Ninth army corps.

Shortly after nine o'clock, the Second corps, Gen. Couch, which constituted the right of the attacking forces, moved out from the upper part of the city between the plank road and western outskirts, with strong detachments of skirmishers. The enemy yielded gradually, though they contested our progress with great stubbornness, and at some time the fatigues of musketry was incessant. At the same time that this movement was commenced, the batteries of the division stationed on the bluffs across the river, opened with shell to aid the exit of the rebels and cover our advance. The rebel infantry, having fallen back to their first line of intrenchments and rifle pits, their batteries opened with a vigorous and rapid fire upon our columns, which now had come to a temporary halt, awaiting the result of the artillery fight. For some time our artillery on the bluffs kept up a heavy fire upon the rebel batteries with such effect that the batteries Taylor Hill, nearly opposite Falmouth, and commanding our right flank, were finally silenced. During this time the artillery of the rebels almost entirely devoted to the shelling of the advanced troops. Occasionally they would roll a shot towards our batteries, but they were all lodged in the town beyond. Our division had the advance supported by the other divisions of the corps, while the Ninth corps, Gen. Wilcox, remained under arms in town, in readiness to obey the signal to advance to the assistance and support of their comrades wherever they could effectually do so.

Soon after, the whole corps deployed into line of battle, with Hancock's division on the right, and in order moved forward to attack and storm the rebel right batteries, while from all the enemy's works a terrible shower of shell, grape and shrapnel tore through their bleeding ranks, notwithstanding which they steadily pushed on into the pits within a short distance of the first line of entrenchments. From the forms they drove the rebels, and then, under cover of the smoke and roar took refuge behind the earthworks. This was accomplished after the most heroic and long continued efforts under a galling and murderous fire. However, we were unable to hold out against the terrible fire which they now encountered, and they finally retired, but in good order, carrying away with them their wounded comrades.

They fell back to their original line of pickets, thus holding the ground which they first occupied, and which they held this morning, when they were relieved by Gen. Stoneman's command.

About noon, Gen. Sturgis was ordered to the support of Gen. Ferrero's brigade, in the advance, he moved obliquely with and on the left flank of Gen. Couch, with the intention of attacking the batteries which had been enflaming Couch's front throughout the rest of the rebel position. He overcame the dead of the Federals, and then advanced to the south of the river, and, under the fire of the rebels took refuge behind the earthworks. This was accomplished after the most heroic and long continued efforts under a galling and murderous fire. However, we were unable to hold out against the terrible fire which they now encountered, and they finally retired, but in good order, carrying away with them their wounded comrades.

By the way of Xanville we have brief Southern accounts of the battle of Falmouth. Gen. Lee telegraphed to Richmond that the Federal army was repulsed at all points. A despatch to the press states that the Confederate losses were estimated at not more than five hundred killed and twenty-five hundred wounded. Gen. Thomas Cobb was among the killed.

Gen. Jackson, commanding one of the brigades, was killed by a musket ball, which struck him in the head while endeavoring to rally his men. His body was left upon the field, together with that of his adjutant, Capt. Swerling.

This unfortunate demoralization of General Meade's division was a partial success of the enemy's attempt to break our forces. As they could not be rallied, Gen. Birney's division of veteran braves was brought forward on a double quick and immediately pushed to the front to fill the gap. They opened a sharp fire, drove the rebels back to the woods, and then, in a charge, drove to the right of Fauquier's line. Smith's corps was actively engaged. Gen. Howard's division and the left of Gen. Brook's kept back the enemy in their front.

After this the fire slackened a little. Towards sunset the enemy made a very vigorous attack on several parts of the line, so as to hold a portion of our ground of attack, but he was speedily driven back at every point.

At dark the relative position of the forces was about the same as in the morning, except that we had gained a half a mile or more on the left.

Darkness shut out the light of day, the scene was one of terrific beauty and sublimity.

The loss on our side was very heavy, and as yet is not known with accuracy.

The Whole Army Retire to the North Bank of the River.

Washington, Dec. 16.—The following dispatch has been received, by the military telegraph line:

"Falmouth, Va., December 16.—8:45 A. M.—It is raining very hard, and the river is rising rapidly. Our troops are all on this side of the river and the pontoons are up."

Bank Checks.

In the first issue of the Checks on the York County Bank, signed by Geo. Arnold, Esq., of this place, the words "which presented in sum of one or more dollars were omitted. Some persons noticing the difference between the first and the last issues have imagined that the first were not genuine. We have authority for saying that both are equally good, and worthy of public confidence."

Sudden Death.

Mr. ADOLPHUS FLENNER, of Liberty township, was killed instantly on the 6th inst., on the road between Fairfield and Harrisburg. He was driving a wagon, and is going down a hill it unclipped, and the horses ran away with the front carriage. It is thought that a barrel of cider which was on the wagon rolled upon him, breaking his neck and back, and causing instant death. He leaves a wife and several children to mourn his sad death.

Frederick Smith has been found guilty of murder in the first degree, of Miss Agnes Tracy, both of the vicinity of Smithburg, Washington county, Md.

A little daughter of David Naylor, near Mt. Holly Springs, Cumberland county, was burned to death Wednesday week. The mother had left her alone in the house, and when she came back, the child was dead, burned to a crisp. It is supposed she was putting wood in the fire when her clothes caught from the flames.

There are counterfeits 50 cent notes of the new postage currency in circulation. The paper is thinner than the genuine; the portraits of Washington in the genuine all resemble each other; in the counterfeit they vary; the linked letters "U. S." under the middle face of Washington in the counterfeit do not show the lower end of the "S" inside of the leg of the "U," while in the genuine they do, &c., &c. This mark is easily seen.

An important financial bill was introduced into the House of Representatives of the United States, on Tuesday last, by Mr. STEVENS, chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means. It provides for the issue by Mr. CHASE of a thousand millions in United States bonds, similar in amount and form to those authorized by the act approved February 25, 1862, with interest payable semi-annually in the lawful money of the United States, and the principal payable in twenty years in gold or silver coin of the United States; also to issue legal tender notes of the United States, the amount not to exceed, with those already authorized, five hundred millions, to enable him to call in all the five-twenty and seven-thirty Treasury bonds, now in circulation and cancel them, and authorizing him to redeem the United States legal tender notes held as a loan and bearing interest. The law authorizing such loans is to be repealed. The bill also provides for the imposition of a tax of fifty per cent. upon all bank circulation over one half the amount of their capital paid in, to go into operation ninety days after the passage of the bill.

EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF DROSEY.—We learn from a correspondent of the death of Mrs. Mary Adams, wife of Geo. Adams, of Nottingham township, Washington county, at her residence, on the fourth inst. The disease of which Mrs. A. died was acute, and was perhaps one of the most remarkable on record. She was tapped regularly every four weeks, from January, 1857, to a short period before her death, and during that time the enormous quantity of 1157 gallons of water was taken from her, the amount taken at each time varying from ten to fourteen and a half gallons. The last time but one she was tapped fifteen gallons were obtained, and two weeks after this eight gallons and three and a half pints.

TERRIBLE DEATH.—On the morning of Thanksgiving, a German employed at the Lime Kilns of Mr. Barnitz, a few miles from York, had occasion to visit the interior of a kiln for the purpose of making the limestone straight at a number of places where they had become displaced. Almost immediately upon his entering the kiln he was overcome and suffocated to death, by the noxious and poisonous gases escaping from the burning mass. The deceased was a widow and a number of children to mourn his untimely loss.

At a banquet recently given at Trondheim, in Norway, a dish of fresh beet was served which was found last summer in some tin cans buried at Spitzberg.—According to indisputable indications these cans were left by the Perry expedition in 1826. The meat was perfectly fresh, and had not contracted any bad odor.

GREAT BOOKS IN PRESS.

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE GREAT REBELLION;

THE HEROISM OF OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS,

ILLUSTRATED VOL. LARGE 12MO. PRICE $1.25.

The critics and the public are right in predicting that this will surpass, in graphic narrative, exciting interest, and extensive popularity, all other books on the subject for the United States will be the heroic daring, patient suffering, and hair-breadth escape of our soldiers and sailors, and its incidents will form the theme of conversation at innumerable firesides for years to come. It will contain, in addition to its stirring details, the philosophical Analysis of the Causes of the War, by John L. Motley, LL. D., Author of "The Rise of the Dutch Republic," etc., the dates of all the important events from the John Brown raid, and an accurate and revised account of the rebellion, with engrossing details of all the battles, with all the heroic daring, patient suffering, and hair-breadth escape of our soldiers and sailors, and its incidents will form the theme of conversation at innumerable firesides for years to come. It will contain, in addition to its stirring details, the philosophical Analysis of the Causes of the War, by John L. Motley, LL. Bank Checks.

In the first issue of the Checks on the York County Bank, signed by Geo. Arnold, Esq., of this place, the words "when presented in sums of one or more dollars" were omitted. Some persons noticing the difference between the first and the last issues, have imagined that the first were not genuine. We have authority for saying that both are equally good, and worthy of public confidence.

Sudden Death

Mr. ADOLPHUS FLENNER, of Liberty township, was killed instantly on the 6th inst., on the road between Fairfield and Harrisburg. He was driving a wagon, and in going down a hill it uncoupled, and the horses ran away with the front carriage. It is thought that a barrel of cider which was on the wagon rolled upon him, breaking his neck and back, and causing instant death. He leaves a wife and several small children to mourn his sad death.

Frederick Smith has been found guilty of murder in the first degree, of Miss Agnes Tracy, both of the vicinity of Smithburg, Washington County, Md.

A little daughter of David Naylor, near Mt. Holly Springs, Cumberland county, was burned to death on Wednesday week. The mother had left her alone in the house, and when she came back, the child was dead, burned to a crisp. It is supposed she was putting wood in the fire when her clothes caught from the flames.

There are counterfeits 50 cent notes of the new postage currency in circulation. The paper is thinner than the genuine; the portraits of Washington in the genuine all resemble each other; in the counterfeit they vary, the linked letters "U.S." under the middle face of Washington in the counterfeit, do not show the lower end of the "S" inside of the leg of the "U," while in the genuine they do, &c., &c. This mark is easily seen.

An important financial bill was introduced into the House of Representatives of the United States, on Tuesday last, by Mr. STEVENS, chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means. It provides for the issue by Mr. CHASE of a thousand millions in United States bonds, similar in amount and form to those authorized by the act approved February 25, 1862, with interest payable semi-annually in the lawful money of the United States, and the principal payable in twenty years in gold or silver coin of the United States; also to issue legal tender notes of the United States, the amount not to exceed, with those already authorized, five hundred millions, to enable him to call in all the five-twenty and seven-thirty Treasury bonds, not in circulation and cancel them, and authorizing him to redeem the United States legal tender notes held as a loan and bearing interest. The law authorizing such loans is to be repealed. The bill also provides for the imposition of a tax of fifty per cent upon all bank circulation over one half the amount of their capital paid in, to go into operation ninety days after the passage of the bill.

EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF DROPOUT. We learn from a correspondent of the death of Mrs. Mary Adams, wife of Geo. Adams, of Nottingham township, Washington county, at her residence, on the fourth inst. The disease of which Mrs. A. died was acute, and was perhaps one of the most remarkable on record. She was tapped regularly every four weeks, from January, 1857, to a short period before her death, and during that time the enormous quantity of 1157 gallons of water was taken from her, the amount taken at each time varying from ten to fourteen and a half gallons. The last time but one she was tapped fifteen gallons were obtained, and two weeks after this eight gallons and three and a half pints.

TERRIBLE DEATH.—On the morning of Thanksgiving, a German employed at the Lime Kilns of Mr. Barnitz, a few miles from York, had occasion to visit the interior of a kiln for the purpose of making the limestone straight at a number of places where they had become displaced. Almost immediately upon his entering the kiln he was overcome and suffocated to death by the noxious and poisonous gases escaping from the burning mass. The deceased was an industrious and worthy man, and leaves a wife and a number of children to mourn his untimely loss.

At a banquet recently given at Trondheim, in Norway, a dish of fresh beef was served which was found last summer in some tin cans buried at Spitzbergen. According to indisputable indications these cans were left by the Parry expedition in 1826. The meat was perfectly fresh, and had not contracted any bad odor.
